On behalf of the Mayor & Council and our Emergency Management Team, we know and understand that potential exposure to COVID-19 can be concerning, however, now is the time for preparedness and not panic. Paulsboro is committed to protecting our residents, staff and the entire community throughout this public health concern while maintaining all emergency and public services. Borough representatives will continue to remain in contact with health care professionals to determine any and all actions moving forward and will update the community as information become available. Accordingly, we want to thank our medical and emergency response professionals who are on the frontline in this battle. We thank all the physicians, nurses, EMTs fire, police and care givers who are out there every day. Keep in mind they are also dealing with every other medical emergency that arises on a daily basis let alone this fight. There are also so many people out there providing services like groceries and all essential services. Our employees who are keeping government operating to provide services. We thank all of you.

So far there are no reported cases in Paulsboro but it is coming here and actually we should all presume it is here and act accordingly. Do not let your guard down.
